Technicality Drops Wrench In Zoning Machine

An opinion by Cook County State's Attorney Daniel P. Ward that villages and cities do not have extra territorial rights over land within 1 1/2 miles of their corporate limits, is expected to create confusion and uproar in suburban areas until the courts or the legislature clarify the issue.

What Ward did was to give the Cook county recorder, Sidney R. Olsen, an opinion that he could approve a plat of survey covering a large apartment project near Glenview without prior approval by the village of Glenview.

Previously such plats had to have approval by a municipality if they covered a development within a mile and a half radius of such city or village.

As a result of Ward's opinion Olsen has approved the plat and the county has issued a building permit for the apartment.

Ward based his opinion on the wording of House bill 1668 passed at the 1961 session of the general assembly. The measure was intended to strengthen the zoning powers of municipalities in rural areas over neighboring unincorporated property.

It is Ward's opinion, and similar views are held by a number of attorneys who have examined it, that the wording of the bill while granting periphery zoning powers in more rural counties abolishes such powers in metropolitan areas.

According to Frank M. Pfeiffer, legislative consultant to the Illinois Municipal League, the trouble lies in the fact that the word "article" instead of "Division," is used in a paragraph of the bill stating that it applies only to municipalities in counties that have no zoning ordinances of their own.

Formerly, it was explained, an article was a subsection and pertained to specific municipal rights. In the new code subsections are referred to as divisions, and articles have become the large, general categories.

So when the bill that no municipality in a county that has a comprehensive zoning ordinance "shall exercise any power set forth in this article" could be interpreted, Pfeiffer said, to mean that these cities and villages have no rights under Article II of the new code. This article is the general section of the code which lists all the rights of municipalities over land within a mile and a half of the corporate boundaries.

There is disagreement over Ward's interpretation but nevertheless his opinion has become the official guide for Cook county and will remain as such until the courts or the legislature rule otherwise.

It was pointed out that similar interpretation could be made in Will, DuPage, Kane, McHenry and Lake counties.

School districts affected by the Glenview ruling are to meet tonight (Thursday) to discuss an attempt to set aside Ward's opinion thru legal action.

Lake county is to ask the attorney general's office for an interpretation.

Pfeiffer said that those in charge of the affairs of the Illinois Municipal league believe the meaning is clear and the bill does not deprive municipalities of their extra territorial rights. He definitely does not agree with Ward. Pfeiffer added that the league will not start litigation to reverse Ward's opinion but would join in any such litigation started by a municipality.

Lincoln-Way Advisors Launch Long Range Planning Program

During the past four weeks the Lincoln-Way central advisory committee held two meetings for the purpose of developing plans and objectives for the future. The committee also decided to reorganize the various sub-committees in preparation for their new study assignments.

Last year five sub-committees were active and made their reports directly to the central committee. They in turn passed on their recommendations to the board of education. These committees were: finance, building & transportation, curriculum, publicity and the Junior college.

The five newly reorganized committees will be selected in the near future. Their areas of study will deal with the population trends, building needs, curriculum and publicity.

The population committee has been assigned the following topics:

1. To survey the Lincoln-Way area district to gather census information that would include the following:
 - a) A census of all students age one to twenty-one
 - b) A survey of parochial students with an indication of their intentions for secondary education.
 - c) Growth study to determine the rate of population growth, the direction of growth, and the composition of growth.
 - d) Shifts in population
 - e) The economic and social character of the population.
2. To study the impact of the new interstate highway on our district
3. To study land use commitments for the future
4. To determine the occupational characteristics of our Lincoln-Way area.
5. To determine whether people in our area would support and use the new proposed Junior college.

Financial committee:

- a. To study the history of assessed valuations in our district.
- b. To study the financial future and fiscal conditions of the district.
- c. To study industrial growth and determine what impact it will have on our district.
- d. To look at housing development keeping in mind their impact on our school enrollment.
- e. To study the bonded indebtedness and the condition of the district to finance new buildings.
- f. To develop a liaison with tax assessors and encourage equitable assessments of property in our district.

Buildings committee:

- a. To look at the technical limitations of the present buildings in terms of a cost breaking point to see what effect this has on the ultimate size of the present building.
- b. To evaluate the present building in reference to current building and educational standards.
- c. To study the future expansion of building facilities and the need for expansion.
- d. To look at the philosophy of education as it relates to Lincoln-Way to answer the following question:

"What do we do in our school that necessitates certain building facilities?"

e. To work as a liaison with the architect in studying the above mentioned problems.

Curriculum committee: To look at the curriculum in its broad scope and suggest areas of development.

Publicity committee: In a broad sense, this committee will serve as the communication media for the committee and the school.

Frankfort Goes To Court Over Water Sewer Bill

A controversy over non-payment of sewer and water bills, which the village of Frankfort claims are overdue by Ray Warning for service at his garage, has now reached the court stage and the case will be heard tomorrow night by Police Magistrate Robert Burns. Court will be held in the Village hall.

Warning says he has no connection with the sewer and has declined to pay the bills. Under village ordinance village water users automatically become village sewer users and subject to billing for sewer service, the village contends. The moneys collected for water and sewer service are used in the retirement of the revenue bonds floated to build the sewer system.

According to the records of Village Clerk Walter Pfaff Warning owes two water and sewer bills, one for $57.06 and the other for $41.20. The village also has a bill against him for $10.93 for meter repairs which has been in dispute since 1958, Pfaff said, which will be tossed into the hopper tomorrow night.

The village claims that after shutting off the water at the garage recently Warning turned it on again and when it was again shut off and the meter removed he is alleged to have used a "jumper" and continued to get water service. He is not getting service now, Pfaff said. The village will be represented by Attorney Albert H. Krusemark at the hearing and Attorney Herbert Folkers will appear for Mr. Warning.

TV Sets Falls Over On Boy, Breaks His Leg

A television set fell over on an 18-month old Orland Park boy on Wednesday of last week (Nov. 29) and as a result he is in Silver Cross hospital, Joliet, for treatment of a broken leg.

The youngster is David, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Feiten. The accident occurred in the living room of the family's home at 9243 W. 143rd street.

According to the mother the TV set is long and narrow and stands on four slender legs. There is a ledge along the front of the set below the screen. There was a photograph on top of the TV, the mother said, that apparently attracted David and in clambering the ledge in his endeavors to reach the top the set toppled over, pinning the boy to the floor. His left leg was broken near the hip.

Starting off by creaming butter and sugar, Mrs. Burdett knows the finished product won't last long when children, Bobby and Kathy, smell the aroma of the baking bread. (Semmler Photo)

Police Magistrate James Surovick gave warning this week that motorists found guilty of ignoring the speed signs in the Mokena school zone on Wolf road can expect a minimum fine of $100 and costs.

Mrs. Alice Bormet, who services as a crossing guard in this school zone, reports that a number of motorists have ignored the signs or her signals to halt and have traversed the zone at excessive speed.

At last Thursday's session of the Mokena police court Magistrate Surovick imposed a fine of $25 and costs on Walter Edwards, Front st., on a charge of driving too fast for conditions in a school zone.

Also fined last Thursday was Charles Cheatwood, Parker ave. He paid $15 and costs for driving too fast for conditions on Front street.

BUNDLES FOR AMERICA -- That's not the name of the collecting agency but that is where the bundles are going -- to youngsters in the United States. The collecting agency is Save the Children Federation, Inc., and these bags of used and serviceable clothing were collected last week at Schmuhl school, on U. S. 30 in New Lenox township, and are now on their way to Knoxville, Tenn. At the left is Mrs. Anna Ryan, a teacher, and the young man is Donald Kooyenga, 13, of Lincolnwood, and of course a pupil at Schmuhl.

PRELUDE TO JUMP BALL -- yes sir, when two players get grips like this on a ball the referee has to take charge and let the two jump for it when he tosses it into the air. No. 30 here is Joe Reinhard, of Lincoln-Way varsity and No. 51 is John DeVoursney of the Carl Sandburg basketball team.

That big fellow at the side, No. 55, is Lance Roberts, one of the top hands of the Orland Park school. The Sandburgs won the game and are looked upon as a team to be reckoned with in deciding the Southwest Suburban conference title.

Things Worn And Carried By Soldiers Of Civil War

By JOHN W. ALLEN
So. Ill. Univ.

The political economic and military aspects of the Civil War have been discussed upon, and at considerable length. Relatively little has been written or said about the soldier of the line who endured the hardships and faced the dangers that the war brought. It was he who lived on scanty rations and tramped weary miles across the country carrying most of his world upon his back, always moving toward the next clash.

It is not easy to understand the Civil War, nor any other war, without a careful look at the lowly soldier who waged it. Some military leaders have been praised for the brilliance ascribed to them. Others have been charged with stupidity. There is no quarrel with all this, but the man in the ranks should not be forgotten.

Perhaps it would be of interest to take inventory of a common soldier. First, there was the man, the chassis as it were. Then there was one cap, hat, or fez, one shirt, one coat or jacket, one pair of trousers, one pair of drawers, one pair of socks and a pair of shoes. This collection was the basic soldier.

To these essentials, a few things sometimes were added. With the cap, a havelock might be included. This was a cover for the cap, having a cape extending to the shoulders. This bit of apparel, copied from the dress of English soldiers serving in the African desert, was not in vogue for long. Dress coats, too lived only a short time in the field. Overcoats were kept by some, but others discarded them, saying they were too heavy to carry.

Many a soldier started out with a lot of extra equipment and clothing, only to toss it aside. Some even carried steel vests, until the 20 pounds of weight, the ridicule and taunts of the comrades, induced them to discard their armor plate.

Just about the first thing given the soldier was a musket with a bayonet which, removed and stuck into the ground, made an excellent candlestick. When the soldier had a candle. The steel ramrod made a fine spit on which to broil meat -- when he had meat to broil. Each man also received 40 to 80 rounds of paper - wrapped ammunition, with a box of percussion caps. He also was given two wool blankets, one rubber blanket or poncho, and half of a shelter tent. These were to be carried in a knapsack on the marcher's back.

In a short time the soldier had no knapsack; they weighed 16 to 20 pounds. He also found real need for only one blanket, and he discovered he could get along without the half tent.

These disappearances were explained away by the words "lost in action." His issue canteen generally was replaced by a study tin cup of many uses. Sometimes the flat canteen would be unsoldered and made into two frying pans. Lacking a tin cup, the soldier frequently contrived one from a tin preserve can, using wire for a bail.

Another item of issue was a haversack, a bag about 12 by 12 inches with a shoulder strap. Into this bag the soldier placed a wide assortment of items, which might include playing cards and dice, writing materials, persimmons and apples gleaned from trees along the way, bits of wire from bales of hay for the horses and mules, pieces of string and strips of cloth for use as bandages, a long with his field rations. In some cases the haversack might also hold a book or two, tobacco and pipe, a hatchet, and other oddments like a spoon, knife and fork. One item found in many a haversack was the soldier's "housewife" or repair kit containing thread, needles, a few buttons and perhaps some yarn to darn his socks.

For cooking in the field, congenial men grouped together in messes. Each mess had its cooking pot, skillet, and frying pan. At first these were hauled along in accompanying wagons. Soon they were carried by the men. With a few items stowed in his pockets the soldier was ready for extended travel.

When night came on the marching men made camp; it would hardly qualify as the tented field mentioned by poets. Men bunked in pairs. Each pair had two wool blankets and two rubber ones. First the rubber blanket was spread, cloth side up, on the ground. The men would lie on this and cover themselves with the other two wool blankets and remaining one of rubber. In this way they slept warm and dry through rain, snow, sleet or hail.

Perhaps no soldiers in history marched so far with so little encumbrance.

Bishop Burrill Delivers Christmas Message

"Peace on earth," is the theme of the annual Christmas message given by the Rt. Rev. Gerald Francis Burrill, bishop of Episcopal diocese of Chicago which includes the churches of this area.

"Are these words, proclaimed by the angels on the first Christmas night, meaningless to men who are busy building fall-out shelters to save themselves in the holocaust they fear?" the message reads.

"To those who know only the outward manifestations of Christmas, its joy and gaiety in this world of tension, hatred and distrust must seem a mockery. To the destruction of the world would seem to be far more believable than the bible's account of the wonderful birth in a manger.

"We forget that it was into just such a world as ours -- a world of conflict, struggle, wars, uncertainty, injustice, violence and despair -- that God came in Jesus Christ.

"Christmas tells us that God loves this world of foolish men and that He came to save them from themselves. Christmas is the assurance to all men of good will that human life is worthwhile and that the joy and love of family and friends we know at this happy season are but reflections of the very nature and being of God who revealed himself to us that first Christmas.

"This is the real significance of Christmas. It is only in this deeper significance that man ternal danger and uncertainty. "In this spirit of realistic faith, may the good news of the Gospel permeate the hearts of all men everywhere, and may the blessings of God rest upon all of you in this Holy Season of Joy."

Wanted-- Industry For The Area

Sooner or later there will be an explosive industrial growth in areas of the southwest suburban region and it will be well if the villages and other governmental bodies concerned are ready for it.

The suburbs have long been considered as exclusively residential in character. When there is talk of industry coming into such an area one frequently hears residents protesting that the reason they left the city was they wanted peace and quiet and to escape a commercial or manufacturing atmosphere.

There is nothing wrong with that -- if one is willing to and can afford to pay for the privilege. But it is an expensive luxury. One still has to have schools, streets, roads, sewer and water, garbage collections and other services, and such things cost a lot of money -- thru taxes. The tax burden is growing heavier each year and the only relief in sight is the possibility of getting light industry and the headquarters of large business firms to locate in the area that they may lighten the load.

There are many suburban areas to the north and west of Chicago that had their beginnings as residential sites and now have areas that are set apart for the use of industry.

The industrial parks one encounters in the north and west suburbs are a credit to any neighborhood. As a matter of fact these industrial parks are more pleasing to the eye than many housing developments one encounters.

Too many of us think of manufacturing plants as dingy and dirty, surrounded by cinder drives and yards, and emitting noise and smoke. These industrial sites to the north and west of us are well worth seeing if for no other reason than to discover how light industry is housed today.

Plants are spick and span and most attractive in design and material. Lawns, flowerbeds, shrubbery surround the plants. Like homes, they are set back a uniform distance from the paved streets and sidewalks they face. Driveways and loading areas are of blacktop or concrete.

These industrial parks just didn't happen. They were carefully planned and it is to be hoped that the villages in this region will adopt ordinances that will assure the orderly development of similar areas. We cannot have a hodgepodge of factories scattered about, some of them looking like squatter havens. Such a condition not only destroys residential property values but also drives away desirable manufacturing firms. Proper legislation by cities and villages involved would protect the investments of the homeowner and the industrial firm.

Considerable thought and research are necessary before ordinances governing industrial development are ready for adoption and the officials whose job it is to do this task would be wise to start immediately. As they say in most building contracts, "time is of the essence," and it is certainly true in this situation.

The Public Service Co. has some movies that deal with the industrial parks of Chicagoland. They have been shown in some communities to service clubs or chambers of commerce. It would be a good thing if they could be shown in all the communities in the southwest suburban area so that all residents could view them. Then all of us would have a better conception of what we are facing and what industry can do for a community.

"Poor as a church mouse."
Now there's a phrase for you. No doubt at one time it was a simile that meant something, now it is just a simile.

It is supposed that at one time if a person were on the same economic level as a mouse that made its home in a church and had to depend upon his foraging there for sustenance he was poor indeed.

But that was a long time ago. This is not to imply that churches of a bygone day lacked support or that churches today are loaded with material things. It would be your correspondent's guess that the reason churches of long ago offered little potential for livelihood for a house was because they were built without kitchens.

Congregations dined together on occasions but the women prepared the food at home and carried back what their families didn't eat. And any scraps that were left behind probably were piled outside and consumed by larger animals, some of whom are natural enemies of the mouse.

With the advent of the church kitchen, stocks of staples were built up and a mouse with access to such couldn't be described as poor, even by an advocate of the welfare state.

On the other hand it may be that there are mice with a predilection for dried glue such as may be found in the binding and covers of hymn books and for such a church would be just the thing.

Probably the expression, "poor as a church mouse," goes back so far that it antedates business offices, otherwise one might have said, "as poor as an office mouse."

At one time, of course, practically all business was conducted in homes and shops. Population growth finally made that system impractical and so buildings were erected to supply office space. For generations offices had been strictly functional places and devoted entirely to business, not including monkey, and one can readily see that under those conditions a mouse would have pretty poor pickings unless he too had a taste for dried glue, fresh glue and paper, washed down with a spot of ink.

There is no accounting for tastes. Look at people and the things we eat. But to get back to office mice, no one needs feel sorry for them. No one can now say "as poor as an office mouse" and have it mean anything anymore than to say as "poor as a church mouse" and have that mean something.

Not all but many office buildings today are plush affairs. Like clubs, some also house restaurants or have their own cafeterias. But sumptuous or so-and-so they all have coffee breaks with attendant cookies or snacks. Many workers also bring their lunches and sometimes portions are forgotten or carelessly disposed of, and then, of course, there are employees who like to keep a supply of quick energy close at hand in the form of candy, salted nuts and chewing gum.

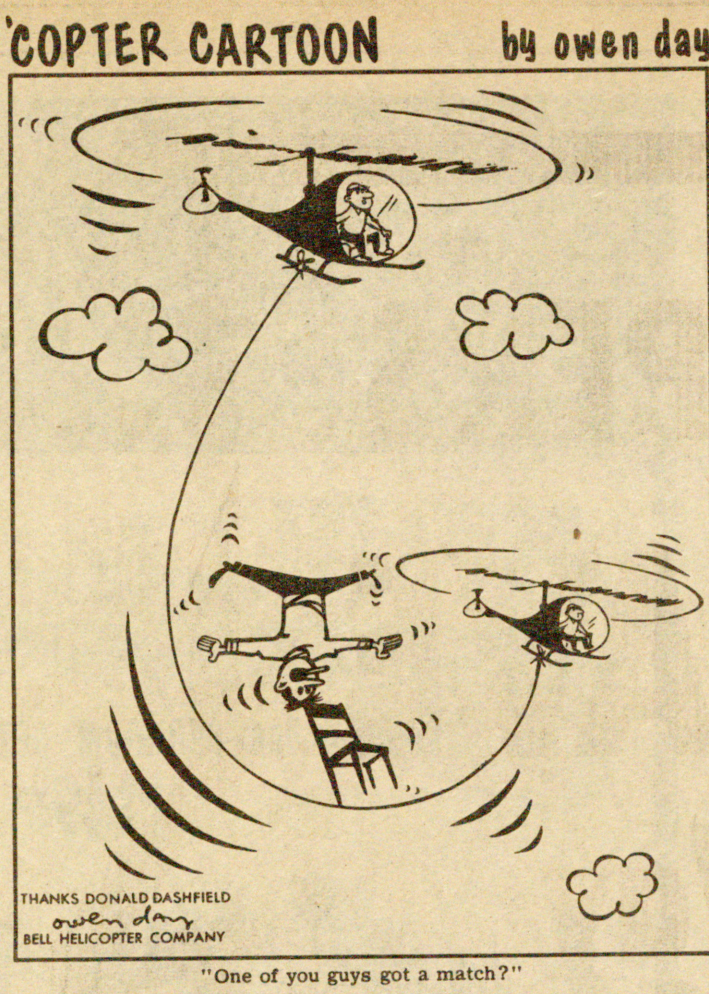

Poor as an office mouse, indeed! All of us should have it so good! One might think that mice today with all the variety of things from which to choose would be financial eaters. But they aren't; they seem to eat everything.

Mary of the Want Ads believes mice -- the office type anyway -- have inquisitive minds. . . are looking for new experiences and appear to be ready and willing to try anything.

Mary of the Want Ads is speaking from experience because there is a mouse back in that section that will eat anything and everything.

He didn't care much for horseradish at first but now he likes it and prefers to have a little mustard or mayonnaise with his cheese and sweet or dill pickles with his sandwiches.

This mouse, Mary says, spends most of its days eating or looking for something to eat. It prowls the waste baskets and if the pickings are poor will crawl up on the rim and balancing there will fix reproachful eyes on Mary until she gives some indication of taking his order. If he stomps twice on basket he wants cheese on rye, with mustard and kosher dills. One stomp is for ham, on either white or rye, with horseradish. No Christmas party is planned at this office, which is just as well. Give this Want Ad mouse a couple of horns of grog and he probably would go next door and start a fight with a big cat that lives there. And having neighbor trouble is no good at any time, and especially in the

A PUBLIC SERVICE OF
ILLINOIS STATE BAR ASSOCIATION
IN COOPERATION WITH THIS NEWSPAPER

We Americans consider as fundamental the rights of every person to own property, to sell or rent it as we please, and to pass it on to our heirs at death. We are jealous of our right to do with our property as we please.

The information should not come as a surprise, however, that titles to land are not absolute, and that the land we own may be taken for use by the public in case necessity requires it. The power which is vested in certain bodies to acquire private property for public use is known as the "power of eminent domain," or the "right of condemnation."

For example, cities and villages, highway commissions, park districts, railroads, airport authorities, and other governmental units and public utilities have been given the power to acquire land from private owners in a coercive fashion, in order that it may be put to use for an authorized public purpose.

The federal government and the states have inherent power of eminent domain over property within their boundaries. As to all other bodies, the power can be acquired only by statute, that is, by a written law passed by the legislature. It is to be used only if the body is in need of land in order to carry out its function.

And, in every case, the landowner is entitled to receive just compensation for his land, measured by its present fair market value for the highest and best use to which the land can be put.

After deciding that it is in need of land to perform its function, the condemning body determines exactly which land it desires to acquire. Let us assume that your property, or a part of it, falls within the area to be acquired. Here, is the general procedure that will usually be followed.

First, a formal offer will be made to you for your land, the amount being based upon a recent appraisal of the land by a competent appraiser. Many condemnation proceedings end at this stage, with the landowner and the condemning body agreeing, by negotiation, as to a mutually acceptable price.

If, however, the amount offered is not acceptable to you, and negotiations fail, the condemning body will file a petition in the local district, circuit or county court, setting forth, among other things, a description of the land to be taken and a list of all persons having a recorded interest in the title.

This petition asks that the court fix a fair price to be paid to you for your land. A summons will be served upon you by an officer, and upon all others named in the petition, if they can be found in the state. Those who cannot be located are given notice by one of those legal notices you may have seen published in the local newspaper.

Finally, if you are still unable to agree on a price, a date will be fixed for trial of the case. You have the right to demand a jury trial and you may insist that the jury go to see the premises to get a better idea of its value. The only question to be decided is how much money you are to receive.

Both the federal and state governments have power, under certain conditions, to obtain immediate possession of the property, leaving the question of compensation for later decision.

Normally, both sides will have experts testify as to the present fair market value of the land. Various types of evidence are admissible to prove this, such as recent sales of other similar lots in the same area. If only a part of your lot is to be taken, you may collect both for the value of the part taken and for the damage caused to the part that is left.

After the evidence as to value is all in, the judge or jury makes its finding, returns a monetary verdict, and the case is over. It is possible that the jury will award you more or less than was offered.

In many instances, the parties are able to agree on the amount of compensation to be paid, and they avoid the trouble and expense of litigation. This is possible where the condemning body makes a fair offer to the landowner for his property. Most persons whose property is to be condemned realize that, although they may be seriously discommoded by this power of eminent domain, their personal interest must give way to the public welfare and the progress of the community, so long as they are fairly compensated for their loss.

Business & Finance

BY MAURICE P. ANGLAND
Fortune magazines Business Roundup for December paints a very rosy picture of the economy of the country at this time.

The article points out that the Christmas season will likely be the best on record and no large immediate labor troubles. Applications for building of FHA guaranteed homes is at highest point in two years. Non-farm housing starts are the highest since 1959.

New car buying is higher than any previous fourth quarter. Used car sales have been brisk with prices up about 15 per cent. This, of course, aids sales of 1962 cars. It is reported that factory assemblies are about the same as current sales and little, if any, re-stocking of dealer inventories of new cars.

New five year highs are expected in capital goods expenditures. Rate of spending is now starting to surpass 1957.

Surveys of anticipated spending for capital goods indicate a total figure for 1962 of about $53 billions or a 15 per cent increase. Capital goods were slower than consumer goods, to get rolling.

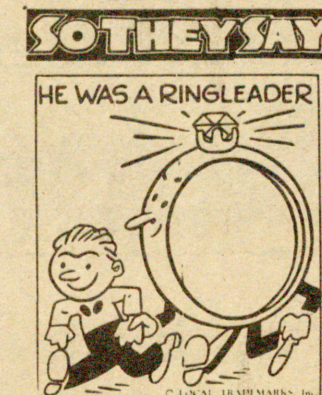

Business Roundup expresses belief that quite often when capital investment planning starts to expand, it goes faster and further than planned.

As expected the unemployment figures have started into line with general business. As the economy starts the upswing of the business cycle, labor with some semblance of discipline during a recession, continues to work somewhat more effectively than during boom times. However, conditions in this area, usually return to norm and labor ratio showing about normal increase in man-hour-productivity.

Some analysts are noting that steel firms are likely to spend even more on new plant. Jones & Laughlin have announced a new $60 million hot-strip mill. These analysts note the profit squeeze on steel makers thru higher labor costs and difficulty of compensating for these increases by higher steel prices. This is actuating greater efforts for automation.

Government spending on both defense and other kinds have been rising and some of these added expenditures have only now been evident in actual spending. There is a greater lag between appropriations and actual expenditure, than is realized generally.

Administration planners have stated they can call a halt at any time the economy indicates greater than normal increase in price level and erosion of purchasing power. Critics point out it is difficult and time-consuming to get government spending program really started and more so to slow it down. They also point out that cold war spending is dependent on Moscow's actions. We must counter their moves and they seem expert at blowing hot and cold. Starting up and slowing down our defense activity in this repetitive manner, is expensive and naturally leads to inefficiency. Likely Russia wants it this way!

It is a little difficult to understand some situations in foreign news reporting. A few days ago a metropolitan newspaper carried a story of Russian moves in the latest atom bomb explosion and fact that government had withheld this news from its people thru control of news sources. On the same page was another note from a foreign correspondent pointing out President Kennedy's interview with Russian editor, was getting to the people.

Hints For Homeowners

By: JAMES FIZZEL, ASS'T. FARM ADVISER

The stately Amaryllis provides a bright accent for the flower window in late winter. That is a time of the year when bright splashes of color are especially appreciated. The scant foliage and short blooming season are more than compensated for by the bright color of the 6 to 8 inch flowers, and by the easy culture.

Amaryllis bulbs should be plump and free of rot or mold and at least 2 1/2 inches in diameter for good flowering the first year. Plant the bulb in a pot several inches larger in diameter than the bulb itself. Any good potting soil is satisfactory, however, the pot must be provided with good drainage. A layer of coarse gravel in the bottom of the pot is satisfactory. The bulb should be planted so that the upper 1/2 to 2/3 of the bulb is above the soil. Be sure to have the soil level about 3/4 of an inch below the rim of the pot. Keep the soil on the dry side until growth appears and keep the bulb in a cool shaded place during this period. When growth begins, move the plant to a warm sunny window and water more freely.

Insects and diseases are seldom a problem on these plants. If the bulbs do become diseased, it is wise to discard them immediately.

Magnificent flowers, brightly colored and supported on a tall stem will be the reward for proper care, and only about eight weeks after potting.

Garden lilies, so delightful but often so expensive, can be easily propagated in the home without special training or complicated equipment. Where small bulbs are produced naturally in the leaf axils of the flower stalk, as in the Tiger Lily, they can be detached when mature and ready to fall, soaked in water for 48 hours, and planted in shallow flats. If protected from drying in summer and freezing in winter, they should produce a supply of bulbs.

In lilies that bloom in early summer, the bloom stalk may be pulled out of the growing bulb with a twisting upward pull after blooming and laid horizontally in a bed of moist sand. If the sand is kept moist, small bulbs will form along the stem at every node. These can then be grown to flowering size. Late blooming lilies will not have time to develop bulbs by this method out of doors, but they may be handled in the same way indoors.

Another sure-fire way to produce bulblets is by the process known as scaling. In this method a large bulb is pulled apart scale by scale. Care should be taken to get all of the scale because the important part is where it has been attached to the base of the bulb.

Put the detached scales between layers of moist sphagnum moss in a mason-type fruit jar. Wet the sphagnum moss thoroughly, and then wring as dry as possible with the bare hands. This will remove most of the excess moisture but will still leave the moss moist enough to keep a good humidity in the jar. Place a layer of sphagnum in the bottom of the jar, cover with a layer of lily scales, then a layer of sphagnum, etc., until the jar is filled. Leave the jar open for 48 hours; then put the cover on without an air-tight seal. If the jar is kept at ordinary house temperature, small bulbs will form at the base of the old bulb scales. These should be left in the jar for several months, then planted shallowly in a flat of light soil and grown for a full year before being placed in the garden.

While this may seem a long time to wait, a single mature bulb will produce from thirty to fifty bulblets. By this means, we can all afford even the very fine expensive lilies for our own garden. The bulbs will usually bloom in three years.

Hits Auto

Mrs. Bloomfield was charged with failure to have her car under control. She had stopped at the Union depot in Joliet to pick up a passenger. As she started to pull away, her car jumped over a small island and struck Cagwin's vehicle. His auto was pushed into a car parked at the curb and then a parking meter.

Joliet police said the island is unlighted and difficult to see.

Frankfort Adopts Social Security Pension Plan

The Frankfort village board at its regular meeting Monday night adopted an ordinance which places salaried employees -- exclusive of the board members, police magistrate and attorney -- under social security.

Only four are affected now, clerk, treasurer, the police chief and a utility worker, but the choice was theirs whether to take the social security program for a pension or go under the Illinois Retirement set-up. They elected to take social security.

In the course of the council session it was brought out that recent criticism of the D'Andrea Construction company because of some flooded basements in the Kansas and Maple street area was without foundation. The fault lay with a private contractor who installed two house connections on Kansas street, it was explained, and D'Andrea, who installed the village sewer system, was innocent.

There is a tile line running along Kansas that carries off surface water. In running house connections from a couple of Kansas street homes to the sewer the private contractor broken the surface water tile line and didn't replace it. Heavy rains this fall caused the ground to become saturated and the pressure of the water forced its way into the sewer line, causing it to back up into a few nearby basements, it was explained. The village arrived at the source of the trouble by the use of dyes.

An application for renewal of a tavern license filed by Ted Massey, operator of a gasoline station and motel at the jun-tion of U.S. 30 and 45, was discussed by the board but no action taken. Mr. Massey will have an opportunity to discuss the matter with the board at its next regular meeting. Mr. Massey has plans for expanding the motel to include a restaurant and bar and last year took out a license. The quarters for the tavern are not yet built, it was explained at Monday's board meeting and the village ordinance covering liquor sales could be interpreted to mean, it was explained, that before a license is issued the applicant should have a place in which to do business that the board finds is suitable.

Mayor George Sangmeister suggested that perhaps the board should investigate the possibility of amending the liquor ordinance which now limits the number of taverns to three so that the number of licenses would be governed by population.

George Heikel, a Frankfort man, is considering the establishment of a restaurant and banquet hall on U.S. 30 near U.S. 45 providing he can have a license to sell drinks with meals. He is considering annexing the property to the village, providing he can reach an agreement on the extension of sewer and water to the site and being assured of a liquor license.

Attorney Krusemark, who represented Heikel in the real estate transaction, said the latter would like to have some expression from the village board in favor of his requests before making formal application for annexation to the village. As yet the board has not indicated its stand.

Improve Gym Entrance At Frankfort Grade School

A general discussion of the progress of the new addition at the Frankfort grade school comprised the major part of the grade school board's meeting Monday night.

Highlight of the progress report by Architect William Scheidmantel was the accept-

Steinhagen Retires From Village Post

Fred Steinhagen, who has worked for the village of Mokena for the past seven years, has retired.

He was employed in many capacities -- he read water meters, repaired same, made repairs to the water and sewer systems as well as to the streets looked after the sewage treatment plant, including the cleaning of the screens and doing anything else the council might devise. He also formerly added the duties of a crossing guard to his other tasks.

Mr. Steinhagen was born at Frankfort but has resided at Mokena since he was nine years old. Before entering the employ of the village he and Frank Heisner, of Frankfort, operated a custom corn shelling business and prior to that Mr. Steinhagen engaged in trucking.

Mrs. Steinhagen was but recently released from the hospital and Mr. Steinhagen plans to be at home most of the time to look after her comfort. She is bedfast most of the time.

So far the village board has not hired anyone to take Mr. Steinhagen's place.

C. Of C. Would Replace Trees In Parkways

The Frankfort Chamber of Commerce is planning to beautify the village by planting trees in public parkways to replace those claimed by Dutch Elm disease or were otherwise lost. Harlan Eisenbrandt, representing the Chamber, appeared before the village board to get its reaction to the plan. The board was heartily in favor of it and Mayor George Sangmeister will appoint two members of the council to act with Chamber group in selecting the locations for the new trees.

Mr. Eisenbrandt said the trees used would be maple, ash or hybrid elms for the most part with some locusts and ironwoods. The hybrid elms, he said, are not subject to Dutch Elm disease.

The village has some 60 trees infected with Dutch Elm disease in public parkways that will have to be removed, it was said,

The Three Suffer Slight Hurts In Collision

Three persons received slight injuries in a two car collision at Cougar and Francis Rds., last Thursday in the late afternoon.

Taken to Silver Cross hospital and released were Nancy Outler, 21, of Calumet City, driver of one of the cars, and her passengers, Marjorie Reed, 35, and Myrtle Smith, 59, both of Hammond, Ind.

Miss Outler's car was traveling north on Cougar when an auto operated by Delores Klein-hoffer, 39, of New Lenox, west-bound on Francis, allegedly pulled out on the road from a stop. Mrs. Klein-hoffer was ticketed for failure to yield the right of way.

This Is The Day To Send In Money For TB Seals

Today, Dec. 7, has been designated "DO-IT-DAY" by Andrew A. Wicklein, Will county Christmas seal campaign chairman, in an effort to encourage all Will county residents to answer their Christmas seal letters. The Christmas seals, sole support of the Will County Tuberculosis association, went into the mail on Nov. 1.

Wicklein said that funds to support the Tuberculosis association are given by the public during the annual Christmas seal campaign. These funds are used for the association program of case detection, research, rehabilitation and community health education.

NI Gas To Make Refunds On Bills In Next Year

Gas bills for Northern Illinois Gas Co. customers will be reduced slightly during the next 12 months as the result of an approximate $4 million refund NI-Gas will receive from one of its suppliers, Natural Gas Pipeline Co. of America.

The reduction, according to William J. Crowley, NI-Gas vice president and comptroller, will average about 30 cents a month for residential customers using gas heat, and about 5 cents a month for those without gas heat. He stated that the refund would not be shown

Gets Change Of Venue

A change of venue which puts the case before Justice of the Peace George Sangmeister has been granted Robert Rust, 28, of East Brightway street, Mokena.

Rust was slated to go before Mokena Police Magistrate James Surovick last Thursday night on two charges, speeding and operating a car without a driver's license.

Rust was caught Saturday, Nov. 25, after a long chase at speeds that reached 95 miles an hour, according to Mokena Police Chief Vernon Bormet.

Three other motorists arrested by the chief that same week end, appeared before Magistrate Surovick that week end and pleaded guilty to speeding charges. They were traveling 60 m.p.h. in a 40-mile zone, the chief said, and Surovick imposed a fine of $20 and costs on each. The three fined were Don E. Jeffers, 20, Woodland circle, and James M. Murdoch, 46, 185th and Wolf road, Mokena, and Randall R. Smith, 17, of 130 Hickory st., Frankfort.

State Distributes Sales Tax To Municipalities

The state revenue department announces payments made to cities and villages as their share of the sales tax collected in September. Payment follows a couple of months after collection, with the state taking a bite for handling the money.

Municipalities that have adopted the required ordinances collect a half cent sales tax which goes into their general funds. Municipalities can spend this money for any purpose for which appropriations have been made. Some save the sales tax for specific use, others use it to meet regular expenses.

Tinley Park collected the most for September of any of the area villages, $2,847.

The amounts set aside for others communities were:

Former Mokena Resident Head Of Oil Co. Division

Francis C. Moriarty, formerly of Mokena, has been appointed manager of domestic refining for the Ohio Oil Co., according to a recent announcement by that company.

Moriarty was formerly vice president of manufacturing for the company's Aurora Gasoline Co. subsidiary at Detroit, Mich. R. E. Lutton, Ohio Oil vice president of refining, said Moriarty will be located at the Ohio Oil general office in Findlay, Mich.

Moriarty is the son of Mrs. Rose McMahan of Mokena, president of the Mokena State bank. He was born and reared in Mokena, attending Mokena grade school and was graduated from Joliet Township high school. He received his degree from Purdue university.

Moriarty, a resident of Birmingham, Mich., joined the Aurora company in 1950 as assistant vice president of manufacturing. He worked as an engineer, department head and presidential assistant for Universal Oil Products Co., Chicago, for 16 years. He has been a vice president of Aurora since 1952.

He will be responsible for the operations of the three Ohio Oil refineries located at Robinson, Ill., Detroit and Muskegon, Mich. The refineries have a combined daily capacity of 115,000 barrels of crude oil.

His appointment became effective on Nov. 1.

Sangmeister Fines Driver

George Gorman, Mokena, was fined $10 and costs by Justice of the Peace George Sangmeister, on a traffic charge growing out of an accident Nov. 5th at 195th street and Wolf road. He pleaded guilty to driving too fast for conditions.

Gorman struck the rear end of a car driven by Charles Hostert, also of Mokena, as the latter was making a turn off of Wolf road to go west on 195th street.

Hostert and Mrs. Gorman were both injured. She has been out of the hospital about 10 days but it was reported she would have to return for plastic surgery.

The case of Michael Lee, of Lemont, who was arrested following an accident on U.S. 45 Oct. 6, was to have been heard on Wednesday of last week but was continued to Dec. 6 because Judge Sangmeister had to be in another court Nov. 29. Lee was given two tickets by state police after an accident in which he is alleged to have rammed a car driven by Lee Yunker of Mokena, injuring Yunker and a passenger in his car, Marie Lavinn, of New Lenox. Lee was charged with illegal transportation of liquor and improper lane usage.

When the FPC failed to rule within the required time, the pipeline company put the rate into effect. NI-Gas then started to charge its customers the higher rate under its "purchased gas adjustment" portion of the bill.

Art Institute Now Showing Works Of American Artist

An exhibition of the works of Thomas Eakins (1844 - 1916), now considered one of America's great painters, opened in The Art Institute of Chicago last Friday and continues thru Sunday, Jan. 7.

One hundred oils, water colors, drawings, sculptures, preparatory models and photographs of men and animals in motion taken before the invention of the motion picture camera, are included in the exhibition. Works have been lent by 31 museums and galleries and 26 private collectors.

Eakins, a contemporary of John Singer Sargent, James McNeill Whistler and the French Impressionists, was rejected in his own time for the realism that is so admired in his work today. Eakins painted men and women as he saw them, not as they wished to be seen. His art was based on the scientific facts of anatomy, perspective, and the reflections of light, not on poetic fantasies. Portraits were not only meticulous renderings of flesh which covered an intricate system of bones and muscles ever ready to spring into action; they were revelations of the thoughts, emotions and basic character of the inner man. More than one prominent person refused even to sit for such a painter. Almost no one would commission him.

Eakins' passionate devotion to facts kept him away from traditional art paths. At age 16 he rebelled at drawing only from plaster casts of antique sculpture in the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts and took up extra-curricular study at the Jefferson Medical School. He became expert in dissecting cadavers, not because he liked it but, as he later told his own students, "...one dissects simply to increase his knowledge of how beautiful objects are put together..." Nothing was more beautiful to Eakins than the human body, a miraculously functioning structure. Eakins was one of the first Americans to choose Paris, rather than Italy, for study. Later, back in the family home in Philadelphia, he continued his unorthodox and unpopular approach to painting, choosing as subjects the activities of everyday urbanites: sailing and sculling on the river, driving four-in-hands in the park; playing musical instruments. He was the first to use prizefighters and wrestlers as subjects for paintings, and the first to use medical subjects.

In 1875, Eakins' painting, "The Gross Clinic" shocked Philadelphians and was refused admission to the art galleries during that city's centennial celebration. It was finally hung near a display of surgical instruments. The painting revealed a surgeon lecturing to avid students during an operation. Blood flowed freely from the anaesthetized patient and covered the doctors' hands, a realism too great for delicate

Lyric Opera Schedules Auditions For Choristers

Michael Lepore, chorus master of Lyric Opera of Chicago, will conduct preliminary auditions for singers in all voice categories who aspire to positions in the permanent choral organization of the company on Monday, Dec. 11 from 5:30 p. m. to 8:30 p. m.; Tuesday, December 12 from 5:30 p. m. to 8:30 p. m.; and on Wednesday, Dec. 13 from 5:30 to 8:30 p. m. Finalists will be heard again on Thursday, Dec. 14 from 5:30 to 8:30 p. m. Auditions will take place in Room 631 of the Opera House building. Applicants should request audition appointments by telephone or thru the mail. The telephone number is Financial 6-6111, and the address is Suite 234, 20 North Wacker Drive, Chicago 6.

Not only will the normal number of annual replacements be made in the ranks of the regular choristers, but also extra voices are to be added, according to Maestro Lepore. Ly-ric's choral complement, when at full strength, numbers more than one hundred singers, including the extra chorus as well as the regulars.

The rehearsal period begins late in March, each year, and continues until the end of the opera season, approximately December 1, during which time the men rehearse four evenings a week and the women three evenings weekly, until one week prior to the opera season, during October and November, daytime rehearsals as well as evening performances are required, but rehearsal schedules are so arranged that choristers may continue to maintain their daytime jobs.

For those singers whose jobs or whose family and professional commitments make the above rehearsal schedule too strenuous, there are positions open in the supplementary chorus, for which a less demanding practice program is required. Each member of the chorus is given a professional contract, under the terms of Lyric's agreement with The American Guild of Musical Artist, covering compensation for the rehearsal period as well as the performances.

Madrid Offers A Magical Mixture Of Old And New

Madrid, a glittering gem of a city, is the focal point of thousands of U.S. tourists who yearly visit the land of the bull fight and flamenco dancers. Situated on a plateau 2,200 feet above sea level and surrounded by the Guadarrama Sierra, Madrid, with its blue skies and azure waters, is a breath-taking sight for the tourist as his TWA SuperJet swoops in for a landing at Barajas Airport.

Madrid is a magical mixture of the old and the new. There is a charm about the city that one can get only through the experience of living there, even if it's only for the short span of a vacation.

The graceful design of Madrid's ancient architecture suggests a leisurely way of life, but the tourist will find also a modern, bustling metropolis. From its heart at the Puerto del Sol (door of the Sun) with its delightful fountains and flower beds, wide avenues cut through the city to connect the main plazas and along these avenues the ebb and flow of a busy people constantly moves.

NO CITY is so famed as Madrid for its sidewalk cafes. Weather permitting, the tourist can sit, talk, nibble and watch the passing parade on avenues such as the Jose Antonio, Alcalá, The Castellana, Serrano or Velasquez.

Madrid is loved by the Spanish as "El Cielo" (Heaven), and the tourist gazing from his sidewalk vantage-point easily understands why. Some of the most attractive women in all the world, including beauties from the provinces, come to enjoy the exciting life of "El Cielo."

The Spanish capital is a shoppers' paradise. A man's suit made of fine Basque country wood can be purchased, custom made, quite reasonably. The gloves and laces of Spain are, of course, world famous and are quite inexpensive. Also ceramics, cutlery of Toledo steel and wines are among a few of the many fine items available for the gift-minded tourist.

But there are many facets to life in Madrid and one of the most important is, naturally, the bull fights. At the Plaza de Toros, the Metropolitan Opera of the toreadors, the season runs from April through October. The Spanish people are punctual and the bull fights always start on time. The fights are not a contest, but rather an exhibition of skill -- a show, beautifully arranged with music, color, bravery and finesse. Razzing, an old Bronx custom, is also permitted if a poor performance warrants it. The tourist should not evince sorrow for the bull, for the Spanish he's the "old devil" himself.

EATING CUSTOMS are on a leisurely plane in Madrid, with lunch usually between 2 P.M. and 3 P.M., and dinner between 9:30 and 11:30 P.M. Among the restaurants the most famous are the Jockey Club (it isn't private despite its name), Chipen, Horcher's and Valentin's. All are expensive, but serve wonderful food in a fine setting. One of the most colorful restaurants is "El Pulpito", former hideout of Luis Candelas, the Castilian Robin Hood. It has been in operation at the same location for over 200 years. In addition to restaurants, the hotels are noted for their excellent cuisine.

The gourmet can find adventure with sea food in Madrid, trying strange things like Angulas, baby eels, or Percebes, a type of barnacle.

Hotel accommodations are in keeping with the Spanish desire for the good life. In Madrid, luxury can be found in the Castellana Hilton, the Ritz, the Plaza, Menfis and scores of others, and prices are not too high.

Meandering about Madrid, the sightseer can take in such varied sights as the Rastro (Poor Man's Market) on the lower end of Toledo street, the Del Prado Museum, which is unexcelled for its collection of Gregos, Goyas, Velasquezes and others, or the ancient Royal Palace overlooking the Manzanares River valley with its well arranged Plaza Oriente surrounded by the statues of the Spanish kings.

The Palace boasts 2,500 pieces of tapestry which would stretch over four miles if placed end to end.

THE CHURCHES of Madrid, although perhaps not as famed as the Cathedrals in the provinces, are still worth visiting, particularly the Hermitage of San Antonio de la Florida containing the tomb of Francisco Goya, Spain's immortal painter.

Knights Lose Opening League Tilt To Eagles

BY PAUL BROWN

The Eagles of Carl Sandburg defeated the Knights of Lincoln-Way at Lincoln-Way last Friday night in the conference opener for both teams. The Eagles got off to a 12 point lead at the end of the first quarter and couldn't be headed after that. They gained seven more in the second quarter and led 31-12 at the halftime intermission. The final score, 52-36.

The scoring honors went to Sandburg who poured in 15 points. Second on the Eagles' squad was Hlavek, sophomore guard, who had 13 points.

The Knights' high men for the evening were Dan Lajcin, and Joe Reinhard, who had nine points each. The Eagles came out with press to open the game, and by the time the Knights settled to play good basketball they were just too far behind to make any real headway. Sandburg had a definite height advantage, and as a result controlled the boards.
